If someone carries your message for you, do you mind if they read it before they deliver it?

1.) Make a private request

On a sticky write “Private - Do not read.”

Address it to “www.secret.ca”

Give it to your mentor to deliver to front of room

Wait for response

(Alt version: Tell your nearest neighbour if your room is clean or not. Do you trust them not to tell your care giver?)

Are the request and response private?

So far, at least 2 people have touched your request - Google and the carrier. Did they look at it?

The carrier probably didn't, but they recorded it just just in case. Google probably did! Now they know you're a super secret spy and show you ads for secret spy products. How do you feel about that? What else does that tell them about you?
